1. The NCAA considers managers athletics staff, even though all managers must be students. Managers must perform traditional “managerial duties” like preparing water bottles, taking care of equipment and towels, and laundry.

2. Managers must be enrolled as a full-time student (12 hours for undergrads), unless you are enrolled in all the courses you need to graduate that semester.

3. Managers may not provide instruction to student-athletes or participate in practice activities. For example, managers can assist with drills and help with warm ups, but they cannot serve as a practice player.

4. Managers may not bet on sports sponsored by the NCAA. This includes all levels of sports, from pee wee to professional, as well as fantasy leagues. This prohibition includes providing information to those you know are betting on sports.

5. Managers may not provide academic assistance to student-athletes under any circumstances.

6. Managers may not use tobacco products during any practice or competition.

7. Managers cannot participate in recruiting activities, such as calling recruits or meeting them off campus.

8. Managers must report any known or suspected violations of NCAA rules immediately. It is not appropriate to share information about known or potential violations with others, or to try to investigate a potential violation on your own.

9. Managers can play “pick up” with student-athletes, but cannot report information about voluntary athletic activity to a coach.

10. Managers cannot provide student-athletes with “extra benefits” like loans, use of parking passes or a car, or free/discounted items or services.
